How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

A VOLUNTEER.

"General, you seem preoccupied, sad, quiet when with me. Can it be from lack of interest?"

Thus spoke the pretty Countess Alvis Zelinska in a soft tone of reproach, accompanied by the most gracious of smiles, to a French officer sitting by her side.

This young officer was the brave Calviniac, an Auvergnese highlander, who, before his thirtieth year, had won already upon the battlefield his epaulets as a general of cavalry.

They happened to be alone in a vast salon at one of the old palaces in Warsaw, the home of the countess, who had been left a widow at 22. A large fire burned in the enormous fireplace of rose marble, upon the pediment of which the arms of Zelinska were finely sculptured.

The month of January, 1807, the time of this story, was remarkable on account of its severity. It is well known that Napoleon, after the battle of Jena and the overthrow of Prussia, conceived the gigantic idea of a continental blockade, and instead of enjoying in peace his triumphs and his glory wished to impose by force on all Europe the effective execution of his projects against England. For that he resolved to pursue the remnant of the Prussian troops to their last intrenchment and to go to meet the Russian army, which was still intact and under the command of General Benningsen.

"You are still mute, general," continued the countess. "Have I lost your confidence?"

"Pardon me," replied Calviniac. "You must excuse me for being dreamy and preoccupied. You know the emperor has withdrawn from me the command of my brigade for a month because I expressed too frankly my opinion of his indifference to the sad condition of your unhappy country. The emperor has punished me severely, and here I am far from my brave soldiers. I was quite happy in my disgrace, since it gave me the pleasure of being received by you, in the midst of the most glorious representatives of Polish nobility, as an ally, as a friend. You, the energetic and enthusiastic patriot, have kept up my spirits, have permitted me the pleasure of seeing you, of confiding in you my cares and dreams, of admiring you, of lov"——

"Ah, general!"

"Yes, I was going to say of loving you. But am I worthy of expressing such a sentiment when I ought to make a strange confession? You see me sad and preoccupied because there is in me a violent combat. I am happy, intensely happy, yet at the same time, in spite of the charm which chains me to your side, I would like to be elsewhere. The inaction to which I am condemned crushes me. I curse the severity of my sovereign. I would like this instant to mount a horse, cross Warsaw and rejoin the army, which means to leave you, to flee from your beautiful eyes, in order to see, face to face, the horrible mustaches of the Cossacks of Benningsen."

"You are always frank, general. However, I admit this unforeseen declaration has surprised me a little. After 15 days of repose you become dull and disconsolate. You are homesick for camps and battles. My salon seems to you less attractive than your tent in the midst of the snow."

"Permit me to explain. I heard yesterday that the work of concentration goes on rapidly; that the Russians are going to be forced to accept battle. My blood boils at the news. 'They are going to fight,' I reflect. 'My brothers in arms are going into danger and honor. I wish to share their lot.' However, when I think of you I am cowardly. I restrain my feelings. Thus you see me here near you, as usual. But I feel that my conduct merits reproach. If you esteem me, you cannot blame me for this indecision which tortures me. You cannot advise me to remain inactive, in the midst of luxury and comfort, in a rich palace, when the dragoons whom I commanded yesterday, camping now in the snow, now marching in the mud or crossing the Vistula by the bridge of boats, are going once more to brave the dangers of war for the glory of France and perhaps for the liberty of Poland."

The countess remained standing before the general, listening eagerly to his words and expressing by her passionate looks the admiration which this martial ardor inspired in her.

"I love you thus," said she; "no matter how much I may miss you, I feel, alas! that you ought to go. I thank you for having given me a day. A day is much in these troubled times. Yes, general, go—go where duty calls you, resume the command of your troops, and return victorious."

"Thanks, countess. You understand me. After leaving you I wish to render myself worthy of your noble friendship. But see to what an extreme an implacable will has reduced me. I have no right to resume my arms and rank. To go to the emperor, to implore his pardon, to seek to reinstate myself in his favor, would be a bold and useless step. The emperor has no time for audiences, and then ought I to deny my sentiment for Poland—to retract the words which I spoke so freely? Oh, no! Today less than ever. Therefore I am forced to seek a way of resuming the service without being recognized by my superiors. I have reflected for some time, and when you reproached me for my silence I was just making a definite resolution. I will present myself to the outposts as a Poland countryman desirous of fighting for his country."

"Why, general, do you wish to enlist as a simple soldier? You will have to obey, instead of command, to march in the first ranks, to struggle hand to hand with the enemy! It is to certain death you voluntarily run. Oh! What have I done—I, who have rather encouraged you in your resolution; I, who admire you only to lose you? I was wrong. I was misled by blind patriotism. Renounce your projects! It is your duty to execute scrupulously the orders of the emperor."

"No, countess, my duty is to be where the French are exposing their lives—to brave the dangers that they run."

"Even breaking your word?"

"I do not violate my oath since I enlist as a volunteer."

"You are immovable. Do therefore as you wish. My best wishes accompany you, and I will pray for you. God grant that your temerity may not be punished! Think of me sometimes."

She extended her hand, which he kissed passionately, while she turned aside her head to conceal the great tears which glistened like diamonds in her eyes.

Feb. 8, 1807, at daybreak, the French and Russian armies met. The troops of Benningsen covered the mountain tops in front of the little town of Eylau. The emperor relied upon this village, the cemetery of which he occupied with the guard. The vast plain which separated the two camps was gloomy and desolate. A white shroud of snow recently fallen entirely covered the hard ground. The sky was gray and gloomy. The rays of the sun could not penetrate the thick, frosty atmosphere.

Upon the left, a little back of Eylau, was massed the cavalry of Murat. In the first rank, among the dragoons of General Grouchy, was a simple cavalier, sword in hand, without a distinctive mark, without a decoration, but superb in his martial and determined bearing. It was Calviniac.

After the scene which we have described the general lost no time. Having dressed himself in the clothes of a countryman and crossed the plains of Lithuania, he presented himself for enlistment to the first colonel of dragoons whom he met.

Thanks to his disguise, he was not recognized, and he was soon able to put on the green tunic with its yellow cuffs and to take his place in the midst of his new companions, wearing, like them, the white breeches, the regulation boots and the helmet with an ornamental plume of black.

The battle was in progress all the morning. About 11 o'clock the snow fell in large flakes, blinding the eyes of the French, who began to waver. The emperor believed that his good luck had forsaken him. He saw that a superhuman effort must be made. Calling Murat, he said:

"Well, are you going to allow these men to devour us? March forward with all your cavalry."

At the order Murat started like a flash and drew up his 80 squadrons in line of battle, placing ahead the dragoons of Grouchy. Calviniac's heart beat fast. At last he was going to fight as a simple soldier; to devote himself obscurely, lost in numbers; to sacrifice his life, without hope of recompense, for the love and glory of his country. His thoughts transported him to the salon of the palace at Warsaw where he had said adieu to the Countess Zelinska. It seemed to him that he could still hear her voice, could see her smile. Thus encouraged, it was with joy that he threw himself against the regiments of Cossacks who with their sabers were cutting down the army of Augereau.

The snow ceased, and one could contemplate in all its horror this immense plain covered with the dead, the dying and the wounded, the blood making horrible spots on the white uniforms of the French soldiers.

The meeting of the two bodies of cavalry was terrible. Calviniac, showing an impetuosity and an assurance which astonished his comrades, struck most formidable blows, overthrowing all obstacles. The Cossacks were soon dispersed or rendered unfit for battle. Then the Russians, in order to delay the victorious cavaliers, hurled again their bullets and shot into the melee without caring for their own.

Grouchy fell, his horse having been pierced by a ball. Calviniac dashed in, released his general, who happily was not wounded, and gave him his own horse. Then bestriding a horse without a master he rushed again into the fight. At this moment Murat and his 80 squadrons, horsemen, dragoons, cuirassiers, charged at full gallop into the Russian infantry.

After a long resistance and several assaults they yielded, fleeing from all sides terrified, bloody and seeking a refuge in the neighboring woods. Calviniac, in the midst of this frightful confusion, fought with an audacity which nothing could stop. Each blow struck, overthrew and killed. His right arm was injured by a ball, but he seized his saber in his left hand and continued his course until the sound of the clarion forbade his further action. The work of this cavalry, perhaps the most astonishing in the history of the empire, decided the victory.

The next day the emperor, in order to honor in some special manner the heroic squadrons of Murat, wished to survey the front of this admirable company of horsemen. Grave and somber, after a victory so hotly disputed, he passed at a slow gallop before the soldiers, saluting the flag lowered before him. Arriving opposite the eighth regiment of dragoons, he slackened his pace and said to Grouchy, who followed him:

"Who is that cavalier in the first rank, who holds his sword in the left hand? He strangely resembles Calviniac."

"He is a Polish volunteer," responded Grouchy. "He was engaged several days ago and has fought like a lion. I saw him at work, and I do not know of one more worthy a reward."

The emperor approached the pretended Polander.

"Well, my brave fellow," said he, "I have the pleasure of congratulating you upon your courage. One of my generals, Calviniac, recently took the liberty of criticising my actions. I have deposed him. You may replace him. I shall have then at the head of my dragoons an officer worthy of them, whom I consider a compatriot and a friend."

He resumed his course, followed by his escort of superbly uniformed generals.

The days which followed this battle were employed in removing the dead to the shore of the Vistula near Warsaw. They were transported on sledges across the vast plains, followed by flocks of crows. Some, whom the guard would not permit to be moved, remained in the convent of Eylau, now transformed into a hospital.

Among them was General Calviniac, who was very ill with a fever. He had abused his strength. After having fought all day, his arm in a sling, he was still at his post of honor, but at night, when the excitement of the struggle and the emotion of triumph were somewhat calmed, his wound, which had reopened, caused him violent pain. Fever set in. The surgeons thought amputation would be necessary, but knowing that the ball had not remained in the flesh and that the bone was not injured they decided to wait a few days.

Happily, a woman watched near him. A young and beautiful Polish girl, wearing the graceful costume of the peasants of Ukraine, had presented herself to the outposts, saying that she sought her brother, a volunteer in the cavalry of Murat. The Countess Zelinska, for it was she, had had a presentiment of the result of the battle, and following her feminine instincts she sought among the wounded for her lover.

After a day of vain search, worn out and anxious, almost desperate, she conceived the idea of seeking shelter in the convent of the Benedictines. Seeing that it was occupied by the wounded French, she still had strength enough to search the large halls. Asking explanations, giving details, she finally discovered the little room where upon a camp bed was extended, not her brother, as she said, but he whom she loved more dearly than a brother, since she had witnessed his chivalry and patriotism.

The countess was not recognized by Calviniac. Delirium had robbed him of his reason. This condition lasted for several days, during which his devoted nurse watched over him constantly. Finally the fever abated, and the surgeons declared that if he avoided all imprudence recovery was certain.

One morning Calviniac, while taking some nourishment, regarded with attention the young woman who served him with so much devotion. He thought that he recognized her features, but her dress puzzled him. He feared that it was a dream or a hallucination. However, hearing her speak, he trembled and remembered the sweet interviews at the fireside in the palace of Warsaw. He made an effort to collect his confused ideas, and raising himself upon his couch called feebly:

"Alvis!"

The countess, unable to repress an instinctive movement, turned toward the sick man. She approached him; their eyes met. They regarded each other a long time without speaking, but this mute language told the story, and joy radiated from their faces.

"How came you here?" asked Calviniac. "It is you who have cared for me like an angel from heaven! It is you who have saved me! Let me repeat to you that word which you stopped upon my lips the day of my departure. Let me tell you that I love you."

He extended his thin, pale hand, which Alvis took in hers.

"General," responded she, "my conduct is a confession that my words do not try to deny. My life belongs to you. I am ready to follow you wherever chance leads you. Your name shall be my name, and your country my country."—Romance.

"KEEP it out of the paper," is the cry which the newspaper publisher daily hears. To oblige often costs considerable, though the party who makes the request does not realize it. A newspaper is a peculiar piece of property in the public's eye. The news gatherer is stormed at because he gets hold of one item, and is abused because he does not get another. Young men and often young women, as well as older persons, perform acts which become legitimate items for publication, and then rush to the newspaper office to beg the editor not to notice their escapades. The next day they condemn the same paper for not having published another party doing the same thing they were guilty of, forgetting, apparently, their late visit to the printing office. The subscribers expect to read the news and there is always wonder when, for charity's sake, an item on the street and in everybody's mouth is not found in the next issue of the paper.—Ex,

America's Great Danger

AN ENGLISH COMMENTARY.

Said an eminent English scientist recently: "The danger that confronts the great American people to-day is not the possible adoption of a wrong financial policy for the nation, or the spread of socialism, or the increase of corruption among public men. All these are bad enough, to be sure, but they are as nothing compared to the terrible national disease—I had almost said national crime—of overwork. The mad rush for wealth is set at a killing pace, and thousands fall by the way every year.

You are likely to be one of the victims!

How do we know? Because it is the exception to find a man or woman of adult age in perfect health. Nervous Disorders are spreading with fearful rapidity. Among the symptoms, are—Backache, Biliousness, Cold Hands and Feet, Dizziness, Hot Flashes, Fluttering Sensation, Fainting, Headache, Hysteria, Irritability of the Heart, Melancholy, Failing Memory, Palpitation, Rheumatism, Short Breath, Sleeplessness, Nervous Dyspepsia, Sexual Debility, Fits, etc.

REV. C. A. CARROLL, pastor First Baptist Church, Yellow Springs, O., writes as follows: "I have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for the past six months. I find it acts like a charm on the whole nervous system. I have not found its equal in giving immediate relief. Dr. Miles' little Nerve and Liver Pills only need a trial and they will recommend themselves to be the best pills in the market."

"For five years I have suffered from Nervous Prostration, I was unable to work or sleep. The first dose of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine gave me relief, and one thousand dollars would not cover the good it has done me."—JOHN MINCHER, Youngstown, Ohio.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is unequalled in CURING Nervous Diseases. It contains no opiates or dangerous drugs. Sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

For sale at Wegner's Drug Store.

For Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, Hardware, Cutlery and also everything kept in a general merchandise store go to Schocken's, north side Plaza, Sonoma. *

Capt. W. B. Pless paid a flying visit to Sonoma last Wednesday. At present he is in Stockton engaged in building a steamer for the Pless Dredging Company.

A cement sidewalk is being laid by V. Bulotti in front of his property on Napa street, occupied by Geo. Breitenbach as a harness shop and J. Ruffner as a variety store.

August, the ten-year-old son of John Ludeman, fell from a small oak tree while gathering acorns, near town last Tuesday, and broke the index finger of his right hand.

Every available working man has been in demand this week for gathering the grape crop throughout the valley, and in consequence the town has a deserted appearance. Grape-pickers make from $1 to $2 per day.

Ed. Estes and a party of hunters of San Francisco visited Sonoma Valley last Sunday. They returned home with several black birds in their game bags and minus 250 shells. They report black birds as being very plentiful in this valley and quail very scarce.

The Home for Feeble Minded at Glen Ellen, under the supervision of Dr. A. E. Osborne, is one of the best managed public institutions in the State. The Dr. is the right man in the right place, as he has made a life-long study in the treatment of Feeble Minded Children.

The Tokay grape crop of this valley, which for the most part is being shipped direct to Chicago, through the agency of Porter Bros., on commission, will net the producer between $70 and $75. The crop is a heavy one and the bunches are large and full and free from all blemishes.

The second trial of Chas. Taylor, the fire-bug, who set fire to L. M. Johannsen's barn near this place several months ago, is set for Friday, November 10th. It will be recollected that the jury disagreed last week. The man ought to be sent either to prison or a mad house. He is too dangerous a character to be at large.

A large gum tree which was being felled by a couple of woodchoppers on Mont. Akers' place at Schellville, last Tuesday, fell in an opposite direction from that intended and striking the rear portion of the dwelling demolished the kitchen. Mrs. Cassebohm's cottage adjoining was also struck by one of the limbs of the falling tree and somewhat damaged.

The sloop "Gazelle," owned by the genial Capt. Hauto, plying between Embarcadero and San Francisco, is doing a heavy freight business. The principal consignments to the metropolis at present consists of wine and table grapes. On her return trips large quantities of lumber and miscellaneous merchandise are stored away in her capacious hold.

Capt. H. E. Boyes, the hospitable owner of Agua Rica rancho, paid this office a friendly visit last Monday. He reports his grape crop as being heavy this season and free from all blemishes. The warm mineral springs on his farm are the most valuable for medicinal purposes in the State and he intends to utilize them for bathing purposes on a large scale in a short time.

THAT TRESPASS CASE.

Ben Nicolini Discharged from Custody.

The case of the People vs. Ben Nicolini, charged with misdemeanor in taking down a fence and putting it back again in order to pass through the lands of H. Thies, which resulted in a hung jury on Friday of last week, has been dismissed on motion of Assistant District Attorney Leppo, and thus ends two of the most peculiar trials growing out of the alleged misdemeanor that has ever taken place in this town.

It will be recollected that Simon Layrs, an employee of Nicolini, was first put upon trial charged with the same offense as his employer—that is to say, misdemeanor. He was convicted and sent to jail for fifty days, although it was clearly shown that Nicolini took down the fence while the convicted man put it up. As the case now stands the man that took the fence down is free, while the man that put it up is in durance vile. Who will dare deny, in view of the above facts, that trial by jury in Sonoma, as asserted in these columns last week, is a farce?

Death of Judge F. W. Shattuck.

Judge F. W. Shattuck, for many years a resident of this county, died at his home in Petaluma last Saturday. The deceased was the son of the late D. O. Shattuck. He was born in North Carolina and was 65 years of age. Judge Shattuck was wedded to Miss Ollie Ewing in Sonoma in 1853, who bore him six children, all of whom survive him: Arthur E., Wm. F., Rena, Mattie P., Frankie and Aletha (Mrs. H. L. Ellsworth.)

Yesterday he was on the street, says the Imprint, apparently enjoying usual good health and spirits. Saturday morning he arose betimes, perhaps more cheerful than usual and had dressed himself for a walk around town. After dressing he remarked that he felt somewhat languid and took a seat. His daughters observing that he was unusually quiet, and that his face had become pallid, were alarmed and called in the family physician, Dr. L. H. Patty, who at once perceived that the summons had come and gently removed his old friend to a lounge, where within a few minutes, as gently as a babe goes to sleep, he breathed his last.

"Fired."

The Alameda Gun Club, which for a number of years claimed the Jones tract, south of town, as a hunting preserve, have been "fired" by order of the Senator. The members of the club have built an ark, picked up their belongings and hied themselves to other hunting grounds. These fellows, whose chief delight appeared to be in bouncing local sportsmen who had the temerity to invade the marsh lands south and east of the drawbridge across Sonoma creek, have at last got a dose of their own medicine.

Wine-Making.

Wine-making is now under full headway in this valley and every winery is busy crushing grapes. The weather and grapes are all that could be desired by our wine-makers and the vintage of 1893 promises to be far superior in quality to that of former years. The yield will fall far short of previous vintages in this valley owing to the many vineyards that have been uprooted the past five years to give place to fruit trees.

Basalt Blocks—Heavy Shipments.

The basalt block business, which has been almost at a stand still in this place for over a year, has commenced to pick up. At the present time S. Schocken and J. M. McDonald are shipping large quantities daily to San Francisco over the Donahue railway. The former has a contract for 150,000 and the latter will ship 100,000.

Postoffice at Ignacio.

A postoffice has been established at Ignacio, with J. A. White, the well-known railroad agent at that place, as Postmaster.

Local Brevities.

Several needed street improvements are under way.

City taxes are now due and payable to Marshal Sparks.

So simple yet always efficacious in all bilious disorders is Simmons Liver Regulator.

The weather has been windy the past twenty-four hours and indications point to rain.

Jack Frost visited this valley several mornings the past week, reminding one that winter is approaching.

Heavy shipments of fruit and miscellaneous freight are being made daily to San Francisco over the Donahue railroad.

The new residence of G. H. Hotz is being shingled, and the chances are that the roof will be on before the rainy season sets in.

THE SEDUCTION CASE.

Examination of Magetti Resumed.

The examination of Robt. Magetti, charged with seduction in leading astray Carrie Baccala, was resumed in Judge Cheney's Court yesterday.

The examination is being conducted with closed doors, the only parties admitted to the matinee being lawyer John P. Rodgers, attorney for defendant, Assistant District Attorney Leppo, Court Reporter Hall, interpreters E. K. Stevenot and Eugene Robin, Deputy Sheriff Sparks, the young lady and her alleged betrayer. The squalling infant in the case was excluded, much to the gratification of officer Sparks, who don't know much about minding babies, anyhow.

As we go to press the examination is still in progress Only three witnesses have so far been examined out of twelve or fourteen that have been subpoenæd to testify in the case. The defendant stoutly denies that he seduced the girl and says he will hang before he will acknowledge the child which is named after him.

A YOUNG FIEND.

He Assaults a Woman in Broad Daylight.

Officers are at present working on an assault case, says the Santa Rosa Democrat, which is the most heinous in its details of any ever perpetrated in the county. The victim is a respectable married woman living in the southeastern part of Santa Rosa. Her husband had been away from home for a few days and was still absent when the assault was committed last Saturday morning. While in her yard, near the timber and brush lining a small creek which runs close by the premises, a young man came along with a gun. He called to the woman, who was on her way to the house, to wait a moment and he would give her some doves. The proposition was one which any young man could properly have made to a woman so much his senior. She stopped. When the young fiend reached her he asked her to go into the barn with him while he unloaded his sack. When he spoke thus it dawned on the woman for the first time that all was not right, and she started to flee from him. He overtook her and grasping her slender throat in a vice-like grip he threw her to the ground. Though it was 9 o'clock in the morning the spot was lonely and the woman was helpless.

As soon as she could walk to a neighbors she had a telegram sent to her husband. He returned the same afternoon. Since that time the enraged man, assisted by the officers, has been searching for the young fiend, and it is safe to say that if the former finds him first, the county will be saved an expense.

GLEN ELLEN.

J. Chauvet is crushing grapes at the rate of 75 tons per day.

The card party to be held here next Saturday evening promises to be a successful affair.

Mrs. J. B. Small of Sonoma is making quite a number of improvements on her property at this place.

Ed. Mann is suffering with a felon on his finger and in consequence was compelled to give up work.

The late rains have greatly improved the county roads, and no damage to the grape crop has been reported.

The plaintiffs in an assault and battery case failed to put in their appearance in Judge Zane's court one day last week.

Idle men are not as plentiful as some months ago, quite a number having obtained employment at grape picking and wine making.

We learn that the railroad company have leased Stark's Park in Petaluma and that the coming Sunday picnics will be held at that place.

The Glen Ellen Grange held its regular meeting last Saturday. Quite a number attended and much interest was taken in the proceedings.

A large barn stored with valuable household goods, the property of the minister at Kenwood, was totally destroyed by fire last Saturday evening.

A yellow jacket's nest enlivened the inhabitants in West Glen Ellen the past week. The "go as you please" actions of some who ventured too near were amusing.

Never let up in advertising, is the secret of success. Advertising that does let up never pays. To stop and see how it works is like throwing a double eagle in the water to see if it will float; you solve the problem but you lose your gold.

Justice John Brown of Santa Rosa united in marriage last Saturday a runaway couple, H. H. Clark and Miss Chrissie Watt, both of Nevada. The Judge said they were the handsomest couple he ever saw and they belonged to rich and prominent families of Nevada.

Calamity howling is poor business. Look on the bright side. This will help to make things bright. There is profound philosophy in the dictum, "As a man thinketh, so is he." Meantime, the best form of help that can be rendered to the unemployed is to give them employment.—St. Louis Republic.

The Santa Rosa Democrat says: Capt. and Mrs. W. A. Eliason, Monday, attended the wedding at San Rafael of Lieutenant Augustus F. Fechteler of the United States Navy, and Miss Maud Morrow, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Robt. Morrow. It is a coincidence that Captain and Mrs. Eliason were present at the marriage of the bride's father and mother.

Miss Doris Clewe has been in San Francisco the past week visiting with friends and relatives.

A peddler went all over town selling stone coffee pots. Among the many fleeced was the hardware man's wife. One day when he went home to dinner his wife informed him what a nice thing she had bought and told him of the coffee pot. She then learned that her husband had them in his store for sale a year at half the price she paid for hers. When told of this she said: "Well, why don't you advertise them? Nobody knows it." —Exchange.

How is This?

Something unique even in these days of mammoth premium offers, it is the latest effort of Stafford's Magazine, a New York monthly of home and general reading.

The proposition is to send the Magazine one year for one dollar, the regular subscription price; and in addition to send each subscriber fifty-two complete novels during the twelve months: one each week.

Think of it. You receive a new and complete novel, by mail, post paid, every week for fifty-two weeks, and in addition you get the magazine once a month, for twelve months, all for one dollar. It is an offer which the publishers can only afford to make in the confident expectations of getting a hundred thousand new subscribers. Among the authors in the coming series are, Wilkie Collins, Walter Besant, Mrs. Oliphant, Mary Cecil Hay, Florence Marryat, Anthony Trollope, A. Conan Doyle, Miss Braddon, Captain Marryat, Miss Thackery and Jules Verne. If you wish to take advantage of this unusual opportunity, send one dollar for Stafford's Magazine, one year. Your first copy of the magazine and your first number of the fifty-two novels (one each week) which you are to receive during the year will be sent you by return mail. Remit by P. O. ## THE LARGEST PHOTOGRAPH.

How a Plate Seven Feet by Fifty Inches In Size Was Produced.

It is 7 feet long and 50 inches high and is a photograph of a relief map of the United States, showing the oil bearing districts. Photographers stand before the colored transparency in the north gallery of the Mines building and declare it to be the biggest thing in the exposition. And so it is from their standpoint. J. K. Hillers of the United States geological survey is the man who made the wonderful photograph.

The model relief map was started three years ago. It is made of wood veneers, one thirty-second of an inch thick, each thickness representing 100 feet of elevation. The map was built up of these veneers and then carved in relief and a plaster cast taken. With the light striking it from the northwest it was photographed, the lights and shadows giving it a beautiful tone. When the negative was transferred to paper, the states, lakes and names were drawn in, and a negative was taken from it 20 inches square. This negative was enlarged to the size of the transparency, 84 by 50 inches.

No ordinary camera could do the work, so the photographer made a camera of a room 12 by 15 feet in size. The room was blackened inside and made light and even airtight. The shutter was placed in the window and the lens in the shutter. Mr. Hillers had three expert photographers assisting him.

The work was focussed on a ground glass plate the same size as the photograph. This was done by three men holding the plate and moving it back and forth until the proper focus was secured. Then the sensitive plate was made ready. This was a piece of American plate glass, three-eighths of an inch thick, made and polished for this particular picture. The photographers had to wait two months for proper conditions of light and temperature. A work of this nature had never before been attempted on such a large scale. Mr. Hillers was obliged to feel his way, for he did not know just how long the plate should be exposed. A test was first made with a small plate, and this gave him an approximate measure of time.

With rare good fortune the first exposure of the new plate was a success, and a beautiful photograph was secured. Then a specially arranged hose was turned against the big plate to wash away the chemicals. It took an hour to do this. After the toning process came the matter of varnish. This was the critical phase of the operation. The plate was laid on four rubber balls, one at each corner, and Photographer Hillers tilted it while an assistant poured on half a gallon of varnish. Success still remained with him, and the transparency was ready for its colors. It took four months from the beginning, when the first negative of the map was taken, to finish the transparency. It is valued at $5,000.—Chicago Record.

Result of One Committee's Efforts.

Ferdinand Hassler, the father of the United States coast survey system, was once waited upon by a committee of congress sent to inquire into the progress of the work. The committee reached New York and wended their way up stairs to the room where Hassler was drilling his classes and preparing them for the work. Hassler, who allowed no intruders, met them at the door and inquired their business. They answered that they had come to investigate. "What part of the work do you wish to inspect?" inquired the Swiss mathematician. Congress had no definite idea on the point. "Then you had better go and find out," returned Hassler as he shut the door in the faces of the astonished committee. The committee looked at each other and on second sober thought concluded that Hassler was about right and quietly wended their way down stairs and back to Washington.—San Francisco Argonaut.

"We've Beaten Them."

The following story of a suit for breach of promise, tried some years ago, was recently told by a relative of the defendant: The case began to look very much as if it should be won by the fair plaintiff, when one morning as the friend came down the street he observed the attorney for the defense waving his hat and wearing a happy expression of countenance. As he came near the attorney exclaimed: "We've beaten them! We've beaten them!" "How so?" queried the relative, wondering what new phase the case could have assumed. "She died last night," joyfully replied the attorney.—Buffalo Courier.

Covering Up Defects.

Apropos of the curly bangs, a woman tells a funny story. She met in the street the other day a neighbor's child, who had had typhoid fever and had only been about for a week or so. Mrs. S——, who had not seen her since her illness, stopped her and exclaimed, "Why, Mollie, how well you look, and how lucky it was you did not lose your hair!" The little one's eyes danced with mischief

"Ah, but I did!" she replied, with a laugh. And to Mrs. H——'s horror and fright she lifted off her jaunty sailor hat and made a low bow, with a perfectly bald and shining cranium.—New York Tribune.

Handsome Presents

Given away at Sonoma agency of the Great American Importing Tea Co. Their Teas, Coffees, Spices, Baking Powder and Flavoring Extracts are without a doubt the best and cheapest. G. H. HOTZ, agent. Give them a call. Judge for yourself.

Animals and Smoking.

In the Berlin zoological gardens Professor Baul Meyerheim, a painter of animal life, has been trying the effects of the fragrant weed on various denizens of the gardens with results as novel as they are undoubtedly amusing. Chief among the subjects of his experiments was the brown bear. He declares that the "common brown bears" are genuine enthusiasts for tobacco.

"When I puff my cigar smoke into their cage," he remarks, "they rush to the front, rubbing their noses and backs against the bars through which the smoke has penetrated."

The professor, with some temerity, once experimented on the lion. The creature was asleep, and this was the moment selected for puffing a volume of tobacco smoke in his face. Did he at once wake up with a savage growl, lash his tail, and springing at the bar, shake the massive iron?

Not at all. He awoke and "stood on his legs," which seems a natural enough attitude to adopt, and "sneezed powerfully." Then he quietly lay down on his side and "elevated his nose for a second dose." It may be news to some to hear that goats, stags and llamas all devour tobacco and cigars with remarkable satisfaction.—Pearson's Weekly.

Minuteness of the Silkworm's Thread.

From careful and reliable experiments made by Professor Henry Newton, Dr. William Lutterwort and Miss Henrietta Rhodes, it appears that a 3-grain ball of silk as spun by the silkworm would, upon being unwound, measure 404 yards. At this rate a single pound of such thread would reach from the east end of the Eads bridge to the very northwest limits of the city of Omaha, and still there would be enough left to make a strong clothes line of regulation length. To be exact, a pound of such threads could be made to extend exactly 535 miles.

Reasoning from this same basis (404 yards to every three grains, dry weight), we find that enough of such threads could be stuffed into a coffee sack to reach around the world—47 pounds being sufficient! If the threads of some of the lesser spiders be used as a computation, the result is still more startling. The writer has heard a noted entomologist declare that enough of a certain kind of such webs to encompass the earth 11 times could be pressed into a common wineglass! Verily, there are little wonders as well as great ones.—St. Louis Republic.

An Impressionist Sketch.

One of the good deacons in a certain church is also the superintendent of the Sunday school, and although he is not an artist he frequently illustrates points in the lesson by the use of the blackboard. These exercises are for the special benefit of the younger portion of the school, and the superintendent has a habit of arousing the children's interest by asking questions about what he has drawn.

Having drawn the representation of a crown one Sunday, much after the stereotyped style of all such royal appendages, he said, "Now, what one of the little folks can tell me what this is?"

Several raised their hands, but the superintendent's eye was caught by a little fellow on the front seat.

"Well, Johnnie, you may tell."

Proud of his distinction above his fellows, the boy rose smilingly and shouted, "A pincushion!"—Boston Journal.

A Typical Purchase.

An American purchaser asked the advice of a distinguished French painter who was visiting New York as to what picture he should buy in a certain dealer's gallery. The Frenchman strongly recommended a picture by an American artist, the price of which was $300. But the name of the American artist was, we will say, Toodles. "Oh," said the patron of art, "I don't want to hang in my house a picture by a man named Toodles. Why not get that Lerolle over there? It's about the same size."

"But," said the French artist, "it is not so good as Toodles', and the price is $1,500."

"Never mind," replied the American magnate, "when I show the picture to my friends I want to be able to say it's a Lerolle—not a Toodles." And forthwith he bought the Lerolle at $1,500, against his foreign adviser's advice.—George Parsons Lathrop in Harper's.

"August Flower"

Dyspepsia. There is a gentleman at Malden-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., named Captain A. G. Pareis, who has written us a letter in which it is evident that he has made up his mind concerning some things, and this is what he says:

"I have used your preparation called August Flower in my family for seven or eight years. It is constantly in my house, and we consider it the best remedy for Indigestion, and Constipation we Indigestion. have ever used or known. My wife is troubled with Dyspepsia, and at times suffers very much after eating. The August Flower, however, relieves the difficulty. My wife frequently says to me when I am going to town, 'We are out Constipation of August Flower, and I think you had better get another bottle.' I am also troubled with Indigestion, and whenever I am, I take one or two teaspoonfuls before eating, for a day or two, and all trouble is removed."

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC
ALAMEDA, COL., Jan., '93. XII
My wife was troubled with nervousness about one year before she took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and at that time had very severe attacks of spasm, convulsion, and pains in different parts of the body; when in this state her lower jaws would act violently and set sometimes, bite her tongue, breathe heavily, then short, then seemed to stop entirely, get a wild look in her eyes and rolling around, then stop sometimes; it would take two men to hold her in bed otherwise her body would cramp and be so for two hours. She took but two bottles of the Nerve Tonic, which cured her entirely of all these torments, which myself and wife gladly testify it truly had the desired effect D. S. M'GILLIS.
